Learning Objective : This course helps primary school teachers design and deliver instruction that is responsive to children’s developmental needs, interests, and learning styles. Teachers learn to move beyond textbook-driven teaching and adopt child-centred strategies that improve engagement, understanding, and classroom behaviour while still meeting curriculum goals.

Course Modules	Brief Course Module Descriptions
SP1801 – Understanding Child-Centred Learning in Primary Education	This module clarifies what child-centred teaching truly means in the context of primary classrooms. Teachers explore how children learn best through interaction, exploration, and relevance. Common misconceptions about child-centred teaching being “unstructured” are addressed.
SP1802 – Designing Active and Experiential Learning Experiences	Focuses on hands-on activities, discussion, and experiential approaches that deepen understanding. Teachers learn how active participation improves retention and motivation. Practical examples relevant to Grades 1–5 are discussed.
SP1803 – Questioning Techniques that Promote Thinking	This module develops teachers’ skills in using open-ended and higher-order questions. Teachers learn how effective questioning encourages reasoning, curiosity, and classroom dialogue. The impact of questioning on learner confidence is also explored.
SP1804 – Differentiation Within Everyday Lessons	Explains how teachers can adapt instruction to different learning levels without creating multiple lesson plans. Simple differentiation strategies related to content, process, and output are introduced. The focus is on feasibility and sustainability.
SP1805 – Encouraging Student Voice, Choice, and Agency	Explores how giving children appropriate choices increase motivation and responsibility. Teachers learn structured ways to incorporate student voice while maintaining classroom control. The balance between freedom and guidance is emphasised.
SP1806 – Reflective Teaching for Continuous Improvement	Encourages teachers to reflect on lesson effectiveness and student responses. Teachers learn simple reflection tools to improve practice over time. Reflection is presented as a professional growth process rather than self-criticism.
